Two more drowning victims were added to the unusually heavy toll of life that Lawrence county waters have taken this summer, when Frank Crouch, aged 17, and his younger brother, Elmer, aged 5, of West Washington street extension, lost their lives in the Mahoning river about 200 yards below the Covert's Crossing bridge, at 2:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Rohrer Recovers Body
The body of Frank was recovered by city fireman Clyde Rohrer, about 3:15, and firemen and other first aid men, worked over the body for two hours in a vain attempt at resuscitation, using the fire department's resuscitator. Fire Chief James E. Thomas, and firemen Rohrer and John Oberleitner were searching for the body.

The body of Elmer was not recovered until 5 o'clock. Bill Ice, local aviator had joined in the search,
the location being but a short distance south of the airport, and about 4:45 o'clock, it was located.
In the plane with Ice was Herman Green, a flying student. They landed the plane in a cornfield near the spot, and Ice waded out into the water and recovered the body.

PA NEW C OBSERVES

Tuesday morning, about a dozen boys were having a big time swimming in the Shenango river. They had two "home made" boats. One was a "single seater", and the other a "double seater", and the occupant seemed to be having a big kick out of paddling on the river.
Indian fashion. The larger boat had sprung a leak and all hands were called to bring it up on the bank,
for needed repairs.

Rivers and pools in various sections of the city, are a great attraction to folks these hot days, in an attempt to "cool off."

For some time the street sign on the post at Ryan avenue, has been torn off. O. D. Mott, of Ryan avenue, later affixed a nice wooden sign to the cement post, which in turn was broken off. To offset this vandalism, Mott has now painted in black letters "Ryan Avenue" on two sides of the post itself, doubtless with the hope that this last effort will be more permanent.

Refreshing rain came to the outlying districts for a while last evening, but the city had but a few drops. It is reported that there has been no rain since June. Beans on the vines are shriveling up and even some trees are dying, because of the intense heat and draw of the sun, which saps the moisture from the leaves.

Most familiar sights these days are coal trucks dumping their wares into Mr. and Mrs. Housekeeper's cellar. Coal, generally for all types,

Certain Passage For Guard Bill

House Debating Measure To-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—With several groups driving for restrictive amendments, the House started debate today on the bill to permit 408,000 national guardsmen and army reservists to be called out for one year's training.

Leaders of both parties said the measure will pass tomorrow. Thus, 17 days after President Roosevelt asked for such legislation it will have been approved by both houses.
It previously passed the Senate, 74
to 7.

Urges Amendment

A strong bloc was advocating that the use of the men called to active service be restricted to continental United States and its possessions.
A similar amendment was defeated in the Senate by a single vote. As now written, the bill empowers the President to call up these men for one year's service "with or without their consent"—and the service may be anywhere in this hemisphere as well as in this country's outlying possessions, including the Philippines.

Warning that "this country is "The only way we can protect ourselves against these enemies of Britain is to be so strong they will

Wallace reached this decision as

Willkie's Stand To Decide Bill Johnson Asserts

Democratic Leader Fighting Conscription Claims Willkie Can Decide

By ROBERT A. MAGILL
International News Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The fate of the administration's military conscription program depends on Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, Sen. Johnson (D) Colo., declared today.

A leader of the bipartisan bloc fighting conscription, Johnson expects the issue to be settled one way or the other when Willkie makes his acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., Saturday.
"If Mr. Willkie opposes peacetime conscription the bill will be defeated," Johnson said. "If he supports it the bill will pass by a large majority, and if he takes a neutral position there will be some sort of a compromise bill."

Hear Knox

While the senate debated the conscription bill, the house military affairs committee heard Secretary of Navy Knox on the issue, and the house considered the senate-passed companion bills to authorize the president to call up the national guard and reserve corps for one year's training.

Johnson said that should Willkie endorse the principle of peace-time conscription it would defeat the bill as a political issue and release a lot of on-the-fence Democrats and Republicans to vote for it. On the other hand, he said, if Willkie vigorously opposes conscription the battle lines will be tightly drawn and cause many Democrats to swing over to the Republican side of the issue.
Johnson pointed out that while President Roosevelt has not declared himself on the pending conscription bill, he has repeatedly endorsed the principle of peacetime compulsory military and defense training.

May Get Compromise

If Willkie takes a neutral course, Johnson predicted the administration will have to accept a compromise, probably the Maloney proposal, to raise army enlistment pay from $21 to $31, authorize the president to set up conscription machinery, but postpone the registration of the 12,000,000 men between 21 and 31 who would be liable for one year's military training until January 1, or indefinitely, if the required number of men are obtained by voluntary enlistment.

Johnson said the senate plans to recess tomorrow to allow the Republicans to attend Willkie's notification ceremony. This, he said, is part of the administration's strategy

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Britain so far is winning her ordeal by air. According to all appearances in London today.

Now, for the first time, the Royal air force is destroying more German planes daily than the German factories are producing, if British reports on the results of the current fighting are accurate and if neutral estimates of German airplane production are correct.

Claim 78 Planes
The British claim they knocked down 78 German planes in the last 24 hours. This means a rate of destruction which, if continued for a month, would account for 2,124 enemy machines.

Experts in London believe that Germany is now producing about 1,800 planes a month.
This calculation "has nothing to do with the probable course of the "airblitz" since Marshal Hermann Goering, chief of the German air force, is estimated to have around ten or twelve thousand warplanes of all kinds to use for an invasion attempt.

And the British believe, he probably would be willing to sacrifice half of them if necessary.
Meanwhile, Britons are displaying either amazing courage or shocking complacency in the face of the gravest danger that has threatened these Isles since the Norman conquest.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 14.—In the first of a series of meetings inaugurating the fall campaign, Demo-

Meyers today conferred with members of the executive committee at Harrisburg to map party strategy.
Today's meeting will be devoted mostly to settling two county chairmanship contests and deciding four Philadelphia ward leaderships.

The committee is expected immediately to settle the differences of John B. Shaw and Charles Book,
both of New Castle. Book claims Shaw was not legally elected to head
the Lawrence county committee.
Another contest is that of Clarence Moretz and Robert M. Fager, both of Harrisburg, who dispute leadership of the Dauphin county committee. Both Fager and Shaw are present chairmen.

Decide Promptly

Walter Miller, resident secretary, said the contests would be decided promptly, while it was the usual practice to appoint an investigating sub-committee to probe the ward leaderships and report back to the full committee at a later meeting.
In addition, Miller said he hoped to make public the list of 36 Demo-

READING, Pa., Aug. 14.—The vanguard of 30,000 war veterans and visitors from all sections of Pennsylvania today began arriving in Reading preparatory to tomorrow's opening of the three-day state American Legion convention.

Hilarity was expected to give way
somewhat to the nation-wide gravity induced by the heightening European war crisis. Of particular interest will be the legionnaires' discussion of pending conscription dis-bills which will call the nation's youth to military training in the present emergency.

This year's meeting must vote on more than 100 resolutions and problems affecting veterans and their families. Two of these were establishment of a veterans' "home guard" as proposed by President Roosevelt, and possible inclusion of former military men on draft boards.

Old Timers Are Meeting At Park This Afternoon

LARGE CROWD
IN ATTENDANCE

Old-Timers from near and far,
descendants of those hardy pioneers who settled Lawrence county, are meeting at Cascade Park this afternoon in their 34th annual gathering, and a large crowd is in attendance.
The crowd began assembling long before the gates of the pavilion were thrown open for the reception of the public, indicating the wide interest in the event.

In addition to the many local residents who are descended from the pioneer stock, there were many who have come here from a distance, just to attend the reunion and to greet friends whom they knew in days gone by. Some will be here who have been away from New Castle for many years, while others will be here for their annual visit,
the occasion being one they would not miss for anything.

While the hand of time is weigh-not know it by their actions, for they are youths again, reliving the deeds of their childhood.

Berliners Get Air Raid Scare

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Aug. 14.—An air raid alarm that lasted three-quarters of an hour aroused Berliners from their beds early today. The all-clear signal sounded at 2:25 a. m.

(Editor's Note: Reuters (British)
News Agency reported that the German radio station at Bremen went off the air shortly before midnight, indicating the presence of British warplanes over that area.
It was stated the R. A. F. also was probably operating in the region of Berlin.)

Later a German propaganda ministry spokesman said the alarm was "mainly precautionary" and sounded because enemy planes "threatened to approach the Berlin district but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire."

He stated that no British aircraft penetrated the Berlin area proper. Likewise, he denied that Jueterbog, south of Berlin, had been

LONDON, Aug. 14.—For the fourth day in succession, hundreds of war planes
clashed in violent combat off the coasts of England today as Nazi raiders swarmed over the country from all directions.

Three hundred planes were reported engaged in scattered air battles over the southeast coast. Nine out of 12 attacking dive-bombers were shot down by Royal air force planes and anti-aircraft fire in one raid.

Over Northeast

While another violent encounter was reported under way off the southwest coast, enemy raiders appeared over the northeast areas of England for the first time since the German air force opened its "blitz-krieg" offensive on Sunday.

While no official confirmation was available, it was understood that a tremendous aerial engagement was in progress up to late this afternoon
over the southwest area.

Three Nazi planes were reported brought down by the R. A. F. in an attack by 12 dive-bombers on a southeast town. Anti-aircraft fire was understood to have so damaged a fourth that it crashed into the sea.

Details of the fighting, which fol-

German Trawler Sunk By British

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 14.—British destroyers scored a victory over light units of the German navy in an engagement during the early hours of this morning, the admiralty announced today.

Two British destroyers, the Malcolm and Verity, caught the enemy force, which consisted of six armed trawlers and three "E" (torpedo) boats, in the rays of their searchlights, the admiralty announcement said.

The enemy ships attempted to escape behind a smoke-screen but were immediately engaged by the British destroyers. Three vessels were seen to be hit and one armed trawler was thought to have been sunk by the destroyers' fire. The British ships suffered no casualties or damage.

The admiralty admitted at the same time that the mine-sweeping trawler Elizabeth Angela had been sunk by German airplanes with one fatality.

Flash Flood Hits Eastern Tennessee

Fear For Lives Of Mountaineers

Sudden Rise In Mountain Streams Thought To Have Trapped 150 Families

RESCUE IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL WATERS DROP

(International News Service)
ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Aug. 14.—Many persons were feared to have lost their lives early today when an eastern Tennessee mountain "flash flood" sent a wall of water estimated to be from 20 to 25 feet deep rampaging over part of Elizabethton and the surrounding country.

More than 24 hours of heavy rain turned the Watauga and Doe rivers, which meet near Elizabethton, into raging torrents as they were fed by countless mountain streams.

Fear For Residents
"We're afraid many people have been drowned," the sheriff's office reported. "One hundred and fifty families—about 300 or 350 persons—live in the worst flooded districts and we won't be able to learn for several hours what happened to them. The water reached levels of from 20 to 25 feet near the rivers and many people living there must have been drowned."

Large rayon plants at Elizabethton were forced to cease operations. In two of the plants, the power systems were flooded.

A number of small towns and communities in the area were isolated by the high water. Scores of homes were completely flooded and their occupants forced to roofs and tree tops. As the water began to recede, rescue workers were able to reach some of those marooned, the sheriff's office said, but no full scale rescue effort was possible until a further recession of the waters.

State highway patrolmen were sent into the flood sections from nearby Johnson City, and all available boats were commandeered for rescue work.

Outstanding displays in conjunction with Old Timers Day, which is being observed today, are noted by many in the store windows of the south side district. These fine displays include old quilts, instruments used in laying out Lawrence county, an oxen yoke, which is 100 years old, world war pictures and firearms. Harry J. While all of New Castle was praying for a nice cooling shower last evening, little fell here, although a good shower was reported by residents living in Energy and that vicinity.

TWO BROTHER DIE IN 12 FOOT HOLE

about 12 feet deep. None of the boys in the group could swim. It was stated, and Frank was wading out into the water with his little brother perched on his shoulders, when he stepped into a hole, and went down. A brother, George "Bud" Crouch, aged 15, went to the rescue of his two brothers and almost lost his life. He was dragged from the water by Bob Gilmore, aged 15, of Mt. Jackson road.

Spread Alarm
The alarm was spread, and rescuers began an immediate search for the bodies, that of Frank being recovered about a half hour later. The body of little Elmer was carried over the rifles below the pool, and was lodged in shallow water a half mile below the drowning scene.

When the body of Elmer was not found immediately, a call was sent to city police for their boat and grappling hooks, and the pool was dragged for the bodies.

Frank Crouch was born June 25, 1923, in Wampum, son of Marion and Edith Eckelberger Crouch. He is survived by his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Crouch, three brothers, Donald, George and Arthur; three sisters, Florence, Anna and Eleanor, and the following grandparents, Mrs. Anna Eckelberger of Newport and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Crouch of R. D. 1, New Castle.

Elmer was born April 17, 1935, at New Wilmington road, son of Joseph and Edith Eckelberger Crouch. Double funeral services for Frank and Elmer will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home in Union township.

BRITAIN WINNING OBSERVER THINKS

they displayed at the outbreak of the war nor the near panic they showed when France collapsed.

Few Carry Masks
A year ago everybody carried a gasmask when it was unnecessary. Today not one person in 20 carries a gasmask—at a time when it is considered possible that Germany at any moment may blanket London and other cities with enough poison to exterminate the population.

They have some reason for confidence because six weeks ago most persons who had witnessed the fall of France considered that this country had about one chance in ten to survive a German attack.

But today the same observers believe Britain now has better than a 50-50 chance to beat off the invaders.

This opinion is based chiefly on the fact that during the last 60 days the British army has largely repaired the damage done to the British expeditionary force in Flanders, and very nearly has replaced its lost equipment.

At the same time more than 1,000,000 home guards, fairly well armed, represent a considerable force.

The spirit of the Royal air force is superb and confidence daily justified by their deeds in battle is now reflected by the civilian population.

British morale was never better.

WALLACE TO QUIT BEFORE CAMPAIGN

quit Aug. 27—the day Senator Charles L. McNary is to be notified at Salem, Ore., that he is the Republican vice presidential candidate. Others suggest Wallace resign Aug. 29, the day after his own notification.

With Wallace retiring from the cabinet, Mr. Roosevelt will have two cabinet vacancies to fill before the election. Postmaster General James A. Farley already has resigned, effective Aug. 31. There are two favorites, among New Dealers, for Wallace's post. They are Rep. Marvin Jones of Texas, and Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri. Jones, however, must resign a recently accepted lifetime federal judgeship to enter the cabinet, so Stark may get the post.

In resigning, Wallace follows the precedent set by Mr. Roosevelt in 1920, when he retired as assistant secretary of the navy before campaigning for the vice presidency in that year. Some weeks ago, Mr. Roosevelt intimated that Wallace would remain in the cabinet throughout the campaign, the president declaring that Herbert Hoover had remained as secretary of commerce while campaigning for the presidency in 1928. In this, the president was in error, as Hoover resigned from the Coolidge cabinet long before starting his campaign.

CERTAIN PASSAGE FOR GUARD BILL

to this country certainly will be introduced and we feel it should be accepted. Rep. Martin (R) Iowa, declared. He disclosed that an unsuccessful attempt was made to write in such a provision in the House military affairs committee, of which he is a member.

The committee also deleted a Senate provision which would have declared failure of employers to rehire employees after their term of service an "unfair labor practice" under the Wagner act. The House bill merely allows the employees to sue in the federal courts. Rep. Smith (D) Conn., said an amendment seeking to restore the Senate provision will be offered on the floor. Indicating non-partisan support for this proposal, Martin said:

"We've got to have something like that. It's just a question of whether it is to be in this bill or in another measure."

To Call 55,000
Meanwhile, General William E. Shedd, assistant army chief of staff for personnel, disclosed the manner in which the guardsmen will be called up if the bill is approved. He said 55,000 will be summoned by September 15 and that by January 1, 220,000, virtually the full complement, will be under arms. Plans for calling the reservists, he said, have not been made.

The guardsmen and reservists will train the civilians called up under the pending conscription bill, provided that measure is approved.

28th Engaged
The 27th's maneuvers in and around Hermon were but one of the brigade against brigade maneuvers throughout the whole 1,300 square mile area today. In the 44th division the 57th and 87th infantry brigades were opposed. In the 28th (Pennsylvania) division, the 58th and 55th brigades were enemies for the day only, and in the 29th division blue and gray from Maryland and Virginia, the opponents were the 58th and 91st infantry brigades. In the 43rd (New England division) the opposing brigades were the 85th and 86th brigades. The second phases of the brigade problems of each of these divisions continued through today until noon. Then the men return to their camps to prepare for the corps maneuvers starting Thursday morning and carrying through until Saturday noon, or possibly earlier if President Roosevelt comes into the area for an inspection, as expected, on Saturday.

Changes in the rules of six county organizations will also be approved or rejected at today's session.

Campaign Committee
Tomorrow the Democratic campaign committee, headed by Henry W. Brockerhoff, Bellefonte, will meet and is expected to fire the opening gun in the sprint for state and national offices.

Mr. Miller said that the finance committee for the fall campaign had not been appointed because he "wanted to be sure that every member would serve."

He indicated that the appointments would be announced within the next week.

The executive committee also was expected to consider the filling of several vacancies on the Allegheny county ticket which occurred with the death of the late Rep. Thomas D. Malone, Pittsburgh, and the withdrawal of several other candidates.

JOINT MEETING OF GARDEN CLUBS

The beautiful summer home of William Bratz, located near Harlansburg, provided a perfect setting for the joint meeting of the Men's Garden club and Lawrence County Garden club on Tuesday evening.

Owen P. Fox, vice president of the Men's club, had charge of the routine session, after which a flower naming contest held the attention of the guests. William Williams, Charles Metzler and Kenneth Breneman had charge of this feature which was won by Mrs. W. C. Eckenrode. She was presented with a prize from the Men's club.

Prof. Charles G. Lindner welcomed the Lawrence County club and gave some interesting highlights on his recent trip to the annual convention of the Men's Garden Clubs of America, held last month in New York. He closed with the story of Jonathan Chapman (Johnny Appleseed), who as a missionary for the Swedish Reformed church, with sacks full of apples gathered from the pulp at cider mills in Pennsylvania, went about preaching, planting and doing good. The national organization was inspired, by his early efforts, to award annually two awards of merit, to be known as the Johnny Appleseed memorial certificate to the two men who have rendered an outstanding service in horticulture.

The national club will become international by addition of clubs in Ecuador and British Columbia. Seven new clubs were added last year, and applications for 14 more in the coming year.

The social committee, Andy Dodds chairman, Charles Black, J. W. Moorehead, George Mills, Ben Campbell and William McCombs, served delicious corn, hamburgers and coffee, with all the trimmings, at the close. For the occasion, the grounds had been beautifully lighted by J. W. Anderson and Charles Black.

The annual corn roast of the Men's club will be held August 27 at the home of Charles Black, East Brook, with J. W. Anderson as general chairman.

Plans are also being made to have the annual flower show about September 15 in the Lawrence Auto sales room.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PREPARING CHILD FOR SCHOOL

IF YOU have a child entering the first grade at school next fall he will be supposed to learn to read. Reading will be his major learning experience throughout the primary grades. Indeed, most of his school work, even if he finally goes to college, will be reading. If he becomes a good reader in his first year at school the rest of his life should be relatively easy for him.

What might you do between now and September to contribute toward his reading success, as he enters school? First, be sure his hearing and vision have been checked by an expert.

Read Aloud

You had better not teach him directly to read this summer. If you have not been reading to him over a number of years, begin at once to do so. An older brother or sister might also read to him. Let all reading to the child be for his pleasure, not a chore. It will be well to show him at times that you read from left to right, running your finger along the page.

As the little child looks at the illustrations on the page while you read to him, what he hears will take on richer and richer meaning for him. He inevitably will long for the time when he can read such stories for himself. Hearing interesting words, phrases and sentences over and over again, he gains patterns of effective expression. His imagination is fired. He learns to concentrate and pay attention. This habit will be very useful to him at school.

The ABC's
It might be well to make him familiar with all or part of the alphabet. His play with alphabet blocks should help. Set the stage so he will ask the name of the letter. For you to ask him might make the learning a chore and dull his interest. In case he likes to draw and print, it might be well to encourage him to print a few letters, following a large neat copy you make.

Knowing the letters should help him with the initial sounds of words as he begins to read, you might draw such simple-line large pictures as baseball bat, bucket, beet, with the name of each picture object printed large under the picture.

Try Typing
If you have a typewriter let him type a few letters and words on it, showing him how to do so carefully.

Well also to print clearly in very large letters on a cardboard the name of a familiar object about the house, as chair, and fasten the placard to the object, calling it often to his attention. Add more of such cards gradually.

But the best thing you can do for your child between now and September is to read to him every day from well-illustrated books. You should be able to borrow good ones from the public library. I shall be glad to send you a list of books to read to the baby and young child if you will write me at 235 East 45th St., New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. My 12-year-old girl insists on reading the funnies at the dinner table.

A. Forbid it without doubt, provided no one else reads the newspaper at the table.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

UNCASHED CHECKS

In the first World War, Count Thierry de Martel, French doctor, developed his talent as a valuable asset for his country. He became one of the world's foremost brain surgeons, working with wounded soldiers, and pioneered brilliantly in the new science of nerve surgery.

When the shadows of defeat fell over France in the second great war recently, Dr. Martel was in Paris. He remained at his hospital with his patients. Then the Germans marched in. Then fearing he would be pressed into Nazi service, he wrote a note to his friend, William C. Bullitt, American ambassador. "If I stay in Paris, it is like putting a signed check into the enemy's hands. If I stay in Paris, indeed, however, it is a check without funds. Adieu." And then Dr. Martel killed himself.

That story may reveal far more of the truth of Hitler's difficulties with the French and other crushed people than all the parrot manifestoes of captive governments and Nazi propaganda of a "new cooperative Europe." Millions, now helpless and mute—farmers, workingmen, businessmen, professional men, inventors, technicians, chemists—must be living in determination to bankrupt the enemy in his conquest by withholding the funds of service cooperation from their new military masters. And those "uncashed checks" of human service may do more than armies to disrupt the glittering Hitlerian dream of a fabulous Germanic world empire—and to destroy the Fuehrer as the would-be Napoleon of the Twentieth Century.

Hints On Etiquette

When you are a house guest for a week end or longer try to take all your belongings with you when you leave. It is a nuisance for your hosts to have to pack up and mail clothing and things to you after you leave.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5:08. Sun rises tomorrow 6:59.

All wisecrackers are not wise.

Now we are told that water is pumped into meat in order to make it weigh more. It can be made weigh about 20 per cent more. Please pass the cleavers!

No doubt some men would also find handbags convenient to carry things in. But just imagine what would happen to the first few men who started carrying them. Some men also wear funny looking hats now.

MALE CURIOSITY

Susie Simper was telling her father about her latest young man. "What sort of work does he do?" asked Mr. Simper. "Has he got any money?"

"You men are all alike," she laughed. "That's exactly what Jack wanted to know about you."

Times have changed they say. And it is true. But people have not changed much. They make and break promises and there are no empty prisons.

Sports, you may have heard, does desperate things to women. It flattens their feet, gives them wretches legs and makes their seams pop at the shoulders, their skin turns to leather and their hair falls out.

CHANGE WANTED

The murderer didn't have any attorney, so the court appointed one and the pair came up for pleading. The murderer looked over the lawyer and didn't like what he saw. "Is this the man who's going to defend me?" he asked the judge.

"That's correct."

"Supposing he should die? Would I get another lawyer then?"

"Certainly. A prisoner has that right always."

"Your honor," begged the prisoner. "I have just remembered that I haven't had time to consult my lawyer. Could I see him alone in a room for a few minutes?"

Europe nearly always has a mess on hand for the United States to keep out of.

A section of gas pipe mounted on wheels and beer cans are being used for shells in some of the military training camps just now. Please pass the bean shooters.

"Yes, my wife has left me," a man admitted sadly to a neighbor. "She ran away with another man in my car."

"Good heaven, man," exclaimed the other; "not your new car?"

SUBSTITUTE

One of our friends, a former carpenter, winked and told us he once broke a window which had a pane of glass, size 14x16 inches.

"I went to the hardware store for another piece of glass," he relates. "They didn't have a piece 14x16 and I was about to go when the clerk suddenly found a piece 16x14. I took it home, slipped it in the window sideways and no one ever noticed the difference."

Some people don't try to count sheep any more so they can go to sleep. There are too many sheep in wolf's clothing.

Maybe Mr. Farley smelt a mouse when he found out the people had quit singing "O, Columbia, the Jim of the Ocean."

Clothes do not make the man but they stimulate the woman.

An old man in the Ozarks, relates the Man From Missouri, sent his son to the village after some tobacco, but the lad did not return. Weeks, months, years passed. Finally one day a car drew up outside the father's gate, and the son, natty dressed, got out.

"Well, father, here I am; I went West, worked hard and made good."

I'm worth $50,000 today," was the son's greeting.

The old man waved his arms angrily. "That's as may be," he snorted, "but where's my tobacco?"

It is said in Washington that more cash is in circulation now than there has been for some time. We have not heard that from any place but Washington.

Good Taste

San. U. S. Patent Office

It is strange how a first trip abroad will upset the equilibrium of many women. They come back with a completely new equipment of accents, pronouncements and mannerisms. In one of the shops today I met one of my schoolmates who has just come back from a holiday in one of the British dominions where she visited Lady Somebody who infected her with the bizarre fad of using a monocle. There was my one-time friend, whom I remembered as a sensible, unaffected girl, leaning over a counter using her one-eye glass to examine some articles. And her dress was something with a peasant motif she had picked up in some far-away place.

She tried to show me one yielded to this trend toward the eccentric are too likely to go to extremes as they grow older, thereby gaining the reputation of being abnormal or slightly demented. So far as our clothes and accessories are concerned, the safest rule is to adopt the fashions of our own class and of the current season.

Reader's Questions Answered

Question: A young man from out of town is soon to visit my home. Should I specify in my invitation to him, how long his visit should extend or should I leave this to his discretion? Since he will be my guest, should I pay for the meals we eat out, also any other expenses, such as taxicab bills, which might be incurred while we are out together?—Rose.

Answer: You should specify the length of his visit. Say, in your letter, "Come down and stay a week, ten days or two weeks" whatever length of time you wish to have him. He will then know that when his visit has terminated he should leave unless urged by you to remain longer.

He should eat his meals in your home, except on the occasion when he invites you to dine with him in a restaurant or a hotel. In such cases, the expenses are his and definitely not yours. The taxicab bill should also be paid by him. You are entertaining him at your home, therefore he should take you out occasionally at his own expense.

Question: Who should announce my marriage? My mother and father are divorced. I am several hundred miles away from both parents, who were remarried when I was a child, leaving me with my paternal grandparents.—Beth.

Answer: Since you have spent most of your adult life with your grandparents, your friends associate you with them rather than with your parents. For that reason, you should have your marriage announced by your grandparents.

AFTER I'M GONE

I know that some day I'll pass on. As all must leave this earth: And when I do this much I ask: Don't lie about my worth.

For, after death, friends always say Kind things which aren't quite true:

So when I'm gone don't build me up. My friend, I beg of you.

When I have passed beyond your reach, Though you no longer see My glaring faults, they'll be there: For they're a part of me.

If you like me with frailties, now Why change me to a saint? Please say to honest—and don't say That I was what I ain't!

That old law requiring a voter to have a tax receipt before he could vote was a good one. People who live in this country and vote should pay some kind of a tax. At least, one they know they are paying.

When many men worked for 20 years or more to have the Pymatuning dam built to furnish water for the industries of this valley they did not have in mind that it would be a great sporting place for people who did not know anything about the dam until after it was built.

BLAMELESS

The mistress of the house peeked into the kitchen and recoiled in horror.

"Bertha!" she screamed to the cook. "Whatever have you been doing? Have you lost your senses entirely? Just look at this kitchen. It is a perfect litter. What have you been trying to do?"

"Nothing, ma'am," said Bertha. "Your daughter has just been showing me how she learned to boil an egg at domestic science school."

Newspapers are suppressed in Germany. This will give you an idea of what happens when people cannot get newspapers.

Few can surpass us in our affection for the old days. But we would not care to go back to them and kick on frozen boots at 6:30 in the morning.

That gal in Pittsburgh charged with stealing 17 purses from mourners at funerals got a year in the jail house. Funerals in her neighborhood will be safe for that time at least.

COMING AND GOING

In Montana there is a town named Eureka. Trainsmen refer to it as the pronunciation of the name.

Passengers often are startled, upon arriving at this station, to hear the conductor yell: "You're a liar! You're a liar!" Then, from the brakeman, at the other end, comes the cry: "You really are. You really are."

A lady in Illinois sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary. She probably thought she wanted to see some of the world before she dies.

You might as well be yourself. You could never be contented if you were somebody else.

Should Weigh Boy
A mother sent her boy to a neighborhood grocery store for two pounds of bananas. After his return home with a sack of bananas, the following conversation took place between the woman and the grocer:

"I sent my little boy for two pounds of bananas, and you sent only a pound and a half."

"My scales are all right. Have you weighed your little boy since he got back?"

Anybody who gets what he wants in this world has everything.

Democrats Don't Like Straw Vote Polls
Reason Is That Most Votes Are Adverse
Indicate That Vote Will Be Very Close

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Organized straw polls on a national scale and involving issues presently to be decided by official elections are bitterly criticized. Certain circles in Washington, as the political hub of the country.

Of course, the activities of Dr. George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion are the target that the adverse critics are shooting at.

Equally, of course, virtually all the criticism comes, just now, from Democratic sources, for the obvious reason that the Gallup results are not a bit favorable to the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket in the pending presidential campaign. They certainly do imply, if they're to be taken seriously, that even though F. D. R. and his running mate win in November, it will be by a much smaller majority than the New Deal leader scored four or eight years ago.

It is also quite understandable why Republicans are finding no fault with straw polling under existing circumstances.

Were Doc Gallup's returns pro-Rooseveltian and anti-Willkieite, unquestionably the Democrats would be perfectly contented, with Republicans howling that such pre-election polls ought to be prohibited or at least strictly regulated.

Rather Contradictory
The complaints are rather contradictory with their arguments.

On the one hand they poo-poo the experimental polls as absolutely meaningless and cite the case of a periodical which engineered one before Doc Gallup's day, went wholly wrong in its conclusions and made itself so ridiculous that it never recovered from it.

On the opposite hand they assert that the polls do influence the voters, influence them improperly and that they should not be permitted, unless carefully supervised anyway.

They don't outright charge that the poll managers manipulate their figures unfairly, but they contend that they can, if they choose to. Somehow, say the kickers, this needs to be guarded against.

Provided the Democrats win in November, maybe they'll pass a law on the subject.

The Republicans won't if they win, though. They'll reckon that straw polling this time was a help to them and they'll want it kept up—until some occasion when it flops over the other way—and they get the worst of it.

Compulsory Voting

There are, by the way, some funny things about voting in regular elections.

Several of our states have laws denying the franchise to citizens who haven't paid quite a stiff poll tax. There's considerable talk to the effect that this is a pre-empt poor folk, who can't foot the poll tax bill, from voting at all. Perhaps it's true.

But in the Argentine republic they have a law making it a punishable offense for a citizen to fail to cast his ballot on election day.

When I first went to Argentina I thought this was a silly statute. "If a citizen," I said to myself, "hasn't sufficient interest in his government to vote, it certainly can't be possible to arouse his interest by penalizing him for not having any."

But one day an Argentine friend explained it to me.

"Once on a time," he related, "our big employers told their workers how to vote, and had watchers at the polls to see that they voted accordingly. If a worker balked he was fired."

Forbidden to Vote

"That made it impossible for a boss to tell how his workers were voting. But he could forbid them to vote at all. If he was sure that a worker would vote as instructed, the boss let him do it—insisted on it, in fact. But if a bit doubtful, he said to that worker, 'In case you vote, you're canned.'"

"Thereupon, on top of the secret ballot, we made voting compulsory. If an eligible doesn't vote he goes to jail, and if he shows that his boss wouldn't let him, the boss goes likewise."

The system doesn't work perfectly. So many Argentine citizens don't vote that there wouldn't be jails enough in the country to hold them all.

And the big employers have so much political pull that they can't be jailed, either.

Nevertheless, it's a logical principle. It works as well as prohibition did in the United States, anyhow. It's a "noble experiment."

PERMANENT
I know these things are true: The blossoms of the spring, Of summer skies the blue, Songs the wild birds sing, November's wind and rain, Winters white counterpane.

Against man's lust and greed And change and sad decay The world's desire for speed: These will unalter stay: Sun, moon and stars above, Friendship and faith and love.

These things I know are true: The deep desire for good Which runs man's whole life through Childhood and motherhood And these shall always stay When armaments decay.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

By The Baltimore Sun (Copyright, 1936)

Politics And Defense

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.

THE MORE closely the huge defense program upon which we are embarked is considered, the greater appears the misfortune that it should coincide with a political campaign in which the titular leader of the nation is a candidate seeking votes. It is more than a misfortune. It comes pretty close to being a great national tragedy.

MANIFESTLY, it is impossible for Mr. Roosevelt to concentrate fully his thoughts and energy upon getting the nation properly prepared and at the same time conduct a campaign for his own re-election. Nevertheless, that is exactly what he is trying to do, and the contention that he is not making a campaign is too thin to discuss. The situation is such that politics inevitably is mixed with defense. And that is slowing us down, minimizing our effort, stalling the machinery. It is a great pity, because this business of arming the nation is terribly vital and urgent. It cannot properly be done by men who are unable to put their whole hearts into it to the exclusion of every political consideration.

THE PRETENSE that Mr. Roosevelt is doing that is being made in the White House, but it is a hollow and fraudulent pretense. The country is supposed to think that he is paying no attention to politics; that he is absorbed by the great problems of the Presidency; that he is too busy to make a campaign; that all that sort of thing must be done for him by his friends. That is the picture which it is sought to convey to the public; but it is an utterly untrue picture. The fact is that Mr. Roosevelt is immersed in politics up to his neck and cannot help but be.

ACTUALLY, he is conducting his own campaign, mapping out his own strategy and playing politics just about as hard as he knows how. He would not be human if this were not so. He is in almost daily touch with his political managers and strategists. And he has been personally sending for various State politicians, with whom he discusses their "local situations." With one of these not long ago he spent an hour considering how best to get a certain anti-New Deal Democrat in a certain State "in line" for the third term. One of the suggestions made—and considered—was that it might be effective to bring him to Washington, where he could be fitted into some job in the defense program.

THIS IS just one instance of the sort of thing that is going on in the White House today. On the surface, the President's pose is one of complete aloofness to politics; underneath he is conferring with the Flynn, in touch with the Kellys, going over the situation with Mr. Hopkins, the completely political-minded member of his Cabinet, who now lives with him, and the not to say that progress is not being made in the defense program. It is to say, however, that not nearly the progress is being made that should be made. Further, it is to say that such progress as has been made is being highly dramatized by the Administration publicity agencies for campaign purposes and is thus being made to seem greater than it really is.

This old world is so much out of joint that even the Capistrano swallows are flying off schedule. For a century and a half they quit their quiet haven in California and returned as regularly as the planets move in their heavenly rounds. On every October, twenty-third they whipped out from the adobe walls of the Mission of San Juan Capistrano and vanished into the south. On every March 19, they came back to their placid home in the little valley between San Diego and Los Angeles.

Last year, for the first time, they broke the pattern of flight which thousands call miraculous. They left on August 11. You may say that the wild and foolish hatred in which

Start Work On Cherry Street

Crew Of Workmen Begin Digging Ditches For Drains Along Street

coast. Legend tells that as an Indian laborer layed the last adobe brick into the mission wall a single swallow began to sing high above, in the belfry. It was a kind of swallow that no one had ever seen in those parts before. It continued to sing while the sweet-toned mission bell rang the Angelus, and the Indians and frocked priests walked to mass. It was gone when the Indian laborer looked next morning, but before noon it was back with thousands of its kind. That was on March 19, St. Joseph's Day.

Then there began such a building as even the pioneering mission fathers had not achieved. Nests grew under every eave while the mission congregation admired. The nests were built of mud pellets and the outsiders were smoothed by the swallows bodies until each looked like a dark cone. In these cones the birds raised their families and from them, on the next October 23, they took flight. This was on St. John's Day. When they had gone a colony of swallows moved in, and on the next March 19, the returning swallows had to drive these out.

Through the years this annual battle has attracted an increasing audience. In recent springs thousands have watched; and the mission fathers have been more than a little troubled by the death toll. The old days, always outnumbered the swallows, and the latter suffer most heavily. As many as half a dozen have been killed and as many as three or four swallows. One brief whirling flight, however, is always enough to give the swallows victory. The swifts fly off and make no more trouble.

But as surely as the swallows depart, each year, the swifts return and go about the pleasant business of setting up housekeeping. In the old days, when the swallows could be counted on to leave on a set day, the swifts came back en masse. These last two years they have drifted back in scattered lots. They are drifting back now. Meanwhile, the troubled swallows beat their way to the south, seeking some haven in which only God and perhaps Saint John of Capistrano can know, a haven in which, perhaps, not even the rumbling of the world's most terrible war can be heard.

THE PRESIDENT has brought to Washington a number of able and patriotic men who are giving all they have to the job. But he is not giving all he has to the job—not by a while lot. While ostensibly devoting himself to the defense program he is in close communication with as greedy and selfish a lot of machine politicians as there are in the country, and he is surrounded by jobholding friends whose overwhelming desire is to continue in office through his re-election. Quite clearly, having made this third-term attempt, if Mr. Roosevelt fails of election, he will be a discredited and repudiated man who will go down in history as having permitted his personal vanity and lust for power to betray him into making a colossal blunder.

HAVING gotten himself into this position, it is impossible for him not to be deeply concerned about his election prospects. Having gotten himself into this position, it is impossible for him to free his mind from politics—and, clearly, he is not trying. Not only he but everyone around him is thinking in terms of his re-election. Mr. Hopkins, of course, thinks of nothing else. Certainly, too, it is uppermost in the minds of Mr. Ickes, the most vociferous of all the third-termers; of the Corcorans, the Cohens, the whole job-holding army, and Mrs. Roosevelt, who in her daily column indulges in sly little digs at those who do not support her husband and sly little boosts for those who do.

ALL these have their hearts set on putting Mr. Roosevelt over in November. Everything else is subordinated to that. It could not be otherwise with the personal stakes so great and the penalty for failure at the polls so severe. The President has taken a gamble with his place in history which no wise and balanced man ever would have considered taking. Having taken it, it seems essential to win at any cost, because defeat would be completely calamitous to him. Thus it appears inevitable that the more defeat looms as likely, the more desperate will be the politics played with our foreign affairs and defense program. It is a bad situation which never should have been forced on the country.

COMPLETE absorption in the grave duties of the Presidency in keeping with his role of The Indispensable Man is the basic political strategy of the third-term campaign. It is as fraudulent as was the "draft" at the Chicago convention. Behind that pose the President is pulling wires all the time to promote his chances. As time goes on he will pull more of them and harder. He has no choice, no other way out for him. Naturally, those who know the facts are filled with apprehension and distrust.

The belief is bound to grow that, in order to save their political lives, Mr. Roosevelt and his friends will utilize the international crisis in any spectacular way that seems best to suit their political purposes. They are in a position where it is impossible to resist that kind of temptation. Insistence upon this third-term effort, plus the kind of fight Mr. Roosevelt now finds on his hands, leaves them no choice. It is a pretty horrid state of affairs, and the blame lies squarely upon the shoulders of the man whose egotism has overwhelmed his reason.

England Won't Fall, Consul Tells Lions

Believes Hitler Is Willing To Talk Peace Terms; Thinks War Will Last 2 Years

"The English will not capitulate," Alexander M. Galbraith, British vice consul, Pittsburgh, told Lions club members during an interesting war talk delivered in The Castleton, Tuesday.

Galbraith pointed out that England and her colonies are bound closer together than any other European power. For this reason, England is prepared to meet the challenge.

Continuing, Galbraith expressed the opinion that Germany had better get in her licks now. Climatic conditions, starting during the latter part of September, will hamper Germany's attack considerably.

Weather conditions will be such that Germany's "blitzkriegs" will be stymied.

Regarding Adolf Hitler, Galbraith said: "Hitler, I feel, is willing to discuss peace terms."

The length of the conflict? Galbraith predicted the battle will rage for at least two years.

Regarding daily news reports telling about losses of planes and damage, Galbraith told the group that details are erroneous on both sides. Information of this nature is not authentic, Galbraith said.

At the conclusion, the vice consul answered quite a few questions.

Elwood, Indiana, Agog Over Willkie Party

ELWOOD, Ind., Aug. 14.—This used to be the place where the Pennsylvania crossed the Nickel Plate.

The two railroads still cross here, but now, even the big expresses from the East thunder to a stop.

Motorists used to scowl at the town as just another mark on the map to slow down their speed. Nowadays, they draw up to the curb, down around Main and Anderson streets and start a chat about a native son—Wendell Willkie.

It will be here on this Saturday, August 17, that Wendell Willkie will accept the responsibilities of running as the Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States.

Proud Of Willkie

This little town of 10,000 persons, with its freshly painted houses and newly cleaned streets is happily proud that it is going to be host to thousands of people from all parts of the country who will come to cheer the man who they expect to enter the White House next January. They are a little puzzled, too, for their political enthusiasm is overshadowed by their civic pride.

They will take you down and point to the red brick high school where Wendell Willkie graduated in 1910. Over its door is the motto placed there in 1898: "The Hope of Our Country." That means something, they tell you.

The thing that puzzles Elwood's citizens is just how many guests they are going to have to play host to. The candidate at first had planned a simple ceremony of accepting the nomination from a stand in front of the school. Like Topsy, however, it "grew and grew," so that the main event will take place in spacious Callaway Park, which was virgin woodland when Wendell Willkie drove cows through it as a boy.

At the school, there will be only a simple greeting by Mr. and Mrs. Willkie of old friends and a brief speech of "thanks" for the welcome of his fellow townspeople.

Out at the park, however, when Mr. Willkie speaks in reply to Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Republican National committee, who will notify him of his nomination, thousands will await his words.

New Water Line

Workmen already are laying a new large water main to provide the water which will be consumed at the park; shrubbery which might be damaged is being removed and stored for re-planting; tents and temporary structures are going up to house hundreds of food and soft drink stands at the park and in town. Carpenters are constructing a series of four bridges at the park over Duck creek, where Mr. Willkie swam as a boy.

Back among the trees, hammers twang against nails in the building of the stand to seat 1,000 distinguished guests and from which the speech of acceptance will be made. The park itself has been expanded to take in a total of 60 acres. Additional adjacent farm lands totaling 350 acres are being staked off to accommodate as many as 30,000 automobiles. Many more in an emergency can be accommodated in another adjoining field of 200 acres.

Everyone has been promised plenty of parking space, plenty of food stands available and a hearty welcome.

Spearhead in all this is a group of some 100 workers who are carrying on in full office fashion in a modest house, in what was once a quiet residential section, now headquarters of the Willkie Notification committee.

Many Decorations

Decorated with flags, bunting and a large picture of the candidate, it has become the mecca for thousands of visitors, not only from within the town and surrounding countryside, but from the four corners of the country.

They come trooping in at the rate of 700 to 1,000 a day, "just to look." They tread the hallways and peer into busy offices, they ask questions—mostly about the Willkies. Although the place is as uninteresting to look at as a revolving door, there seems to be a compelling force about visiting it, or so those in Elwood will tell you.

Then almost around the corner is the reconstructed birthplace of Mr. Willkie, marked by a sign, as was his former home down the street. Automobiles pause before them for a stop to look around.

Yes, Elwood surely has changed. As one housewife breathlessly said, "Whoever would have thought Elwood would ever be like this."

Huge Chorus Of Local Singers To Participate In Memorial August 28th

Ross D. Rosenberger, chairman of the music committee for the Ira D. Sankey centennial celebration, today announced the selection of Robert A. Duff as director of the huge chorus which will be an outstanding feature of the celebration August 28th in the Scottish Rite Cathedral.

The chorus, to be made up of volunteer singers to be recruited from church congregations throughout the county, is expected to number more than 300. Our community being blessed with an exceptional number of able choral directors made the choice difficult. Duff's selection was greeted with approval.

At the same time the selection of Edwin Lewis, organist, and Kathryn Neslie Allen, pianist, as accompanists for the chorus, were announced.

Rosenberger stated that letters are going out this week to ministers and lay leaders of all churches in the county inviting volunteers for the chorus. Enclosed with these letters is a monograph on the life and work of Ira D. Sankey, prepared by Rev. Norris A. White and Miss Ruth George. The Reverends Robert Withers, J. Calvin Rose, S. E. Irvine, Grant Fisher and Norris A. White addressed an additional message to all ministers of the county asking that Sunday, August 25th, be observed as Sankey Sunday and that the impressive story of the life of this world famed son of Lawrence County be recounted in all churches and Sunday schools.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Infantile paralysis, the dread disease of childhood, is now considered infection. In tests, monkeys have after an injection of the disease after the nose and throat of infected humans. Yet, as pointed out here last week, epidemics come about in a very peculiar manner. Cases do not happen in the same home very often. They occur blocks apart in cities, miles apart in the country, as will be noted during this month, the season for polio.

I have my own theory of why this is so. Practically everyone has infantile paralysis at some time. Very few of us grow to man or womanhood and escape it. Fortunately, most of us have the disease in such a mild form that it passes unrecognized, as a bad cold or an attack of influenza.

The disease is something like a cold in its effects. Some colds are mild, some severe. Sometimes a mere cold will take a life.

Periodically, every few years that is, a more virulent form of the disease comes along. When it does, it strikes those who haven't yet had the infection and built up an immunity to it. Fortunately for us all, there aren't many of these, according to my theory. Consequently, you seldom see two cases of polio—the most virulent type—in the same household. Because the rest have all had the disease in a mild form and have been immunized.

Perhaps the biggest obstacle of science in the study of the disease is the fact that the organism that causes it has never been isolated. It is what is known as a filtrable virus—the same breed of germ that causes the common cold. We know far less than we should about the common cold. Possibly in thorough investigation of it lies the way to more knowledge of infantile paralysis.

But, as I warned above, all this is but a theory of mine. It seems to me to be sound, based as it is on observations during thirty-odd years of practice, but, of course, it needs scientific proving.

Tomorrow: A Sure Diagnosis of Infantile Paralysis.

County Superintendent of Schools John C. Syling can attest to the fact that advertising in The News pays. He can also attest to the fact that there are a great number of young men and women who are qualified to teach school, who would like to take charge of a one-room building anywhere. Notice of the fact that some of the township boards had found teachers for one-room schools hard to get, which was published in Monday's paper brought an immediate and overwhelming response. So much so, that Mr. Syling was unable to get his flowers watered Monday evening, due to the great number of phone calls which were received. There is no longer any shortage, he announces.

Lawrence county's jail population is now at the lowest point during the term of Sheriff M. M. Ingham, release of prisoners this week bringing the number confined in the county bastille to 16. The lowest previous figure during his term had been 19.

There is a story going around the court house, which starts out like this. Once upon a time, there was a turtle. Charges and recriminations are still flying thick and fast over the disappearance of Andy Dodds' 22½ pound monster, and Andy is now discovering signs of a commotion in his lily pond, which might be caused by the saurian monster. At any rate, turtle soup lovers are beginning to throw off the mantle of despondency, and are hoping that Andy will discover that whatever is rolling the water in the lily pond is the long lost turtle, and that the promised turtle soup feed will come off even though delayed.

Persons get it walking around public places barefooted.

It may be acquired by using borrowed slippers or towels.

This type of fungus attaches itself to the skin.

It affects the areas around the toes, and under the toenails.

Ringworm thrives in silk stockings and in leather shoes.

People may rid their feet entirely of this unpleasant condition.

Italian Gains Create Serious Situation London Admits

Navy Bombards Coastal Camps

Italians Throwing Everything They Have Into Attacks In Somaliland

BELIEVE BERBERA WILL NOT FALL

(International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 14.—Italian advances have created a serious situation in the British Somaliland, it was officially admitted today despite announcement that the British navy had successfully bombarded Italian coastal concentrations.

The situation, however, is by no means grim or critical, officials declared.

Use Everything
The Italians were described as throwing everything they have into the advance, while the British are resisting stoutly.

"The public must be surprised to learn of Italian successes, although at present there is no reason to believe that Berbera will fall," a spokesman said.

The Italians are attacking in large numbers along a wide front with vigor and determination, it was said, using infantry supported by tanks, preceded by low-flying and machine-gunning bombers.

They have made a deep penetration at only one place, however, according to a military spokesman.

They captured two guns and the situation at this point "has not been restored," it was said.

On the coast, the Italians reached Lukhaya, about 100 miles from Berbera.

Light naval forces bombarded and dispersed Italian troops and mechanized transport concentrations, the announcement said, holding up an enemy advance on Bulhar.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Bitter fighting in British Somaliland and a heavy bombing of Milan and other Italian cities by enemy planes were announced by the Italian military bulletin today.

Twelve civilians were killed and 44 wounded in Milan, the communiqué charged. It said:

"A fierce engagement is going on in British Somaliland east of Adaleh. Our maneuver, although strongly opposed, is being carried out."

"At 1 a. m. enemy planes coming from Switzerland carried out air raids on northern Italy, throwing bombs and leaflets."

"In Milan 30 explosive bombs and incendiaries were hurled. All fell on the residential sector and no military objectives were hit. Twelve persons were killed and 44 wounded, all civilians."

Bomb Turin
"At Turin 15 bombs were dropped, but no damage was caused to military or industrial structures. One person was killed and eight were wounded there."

"Alessandria and Tortona also were bombed. At Alessandria nine persons were killed."

"Four bombs fell on Augusta and Syracuse in Sicily but there were no victims and no damages."

"One enemy torpedo plane was brought down by anti-aircraft batteries of the Italian navy. The crew was captured."

(Editor's Note: A dispatch from Geneva told of an early morning air raid alarm there, stating unidentified planes were seen flying over Switzerland.)

Army Office Is Taking Applicants For U. S. Air Corps

Getting Ready For Unlimited Recruiting Quota To Start On Friday

Local young men who desire to enlist in the United States Army Air Corps are being examined today and Thursday at the New Castle Army Recruiting Station, post office building.

According to Sergeant Owen E. Tighe, officer-in-charge of the station, the air corps posts at Langley Field, Va., and Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., will be thrown open for unlimited recruiting on Friday of this week.

Anyone who applies at the local army office today or tonight or anytime Thursday, may be ready for enlistment on the opening day, Friday.

'Sixteeners' Enjoy Reunion At Mercer

"Sixteeners," or members of the former Soldiers' Orphans school at Mercer, are again enjoying periods of class meetings this week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, inclusive.

School sessions are taking place, however, in the county court house in Mercer, instead of the school building. Students include former members of the school, who were orphans of the Civil War and other students of the vicinity, who lived at the school and were forced to go out into the world and make their living when becoming sixteen years of age, thus was the name for the reunion established. Members, numbering 50, are registered.

Most sad to all those former pupils, who are too aged at the present time, to attend the reunion assemblies, will be the news that Edward Sandford, of Erie, who was elected president of the group last year, upon attempting to catch the bus to Mercer to attend the Tuesday's all day gathering, late Monday, dropped dead on the streets of Erie with a heart attack.

Another president will be elected during the forenoon session today, after which there will be a social time, with an entertainment featuring the evening hours.

Thursday's session will be starred with a picnic outing all day at the Mercer Methodist church.

Bird Signs Show Autumn Is Near

Close observers of the outdoors will notice that signs are multiplying in the insect and bird world, to remind us that fall is approaching.

The plentiful fireflies of this summer, have put out their lamps, and the katy-dids sound has lessened to a marked degree, and the crickets are lengthening their "fiddling" as the cool nights are getting more numerous. In the hot weather, the fiddling notes rhythm is faster.

Owen Fox states also that the tree frogs act as if they were tired, after the season's continuous croakings. It can also be noticed that the cheerful call of the robins is about done, their period of nesting and raising families, is over. The sharp whistle of the "Bob White" is increasing in volume every day, a sure sign that fall is in the offing.

YOUNG CITY GROWS FAST

H. R. Knickerbocker Believes Germans Trying For Blockade

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Is it invasion or blockade?

With four or five hundred of his bombers and fighters attacking all along the channel and south coasts of Great Britain today Chancellor Hitler gave some evidence that he is trying by his three-to-one superiority in numbers to knock out the Royal air force before he attempts an invasion.

There is plenty of other evidence that the current operations represent another step in the attempted blockade of the British Isles.

On account of the approach of autumn, Hitler must succeed in obliterating the Royal air force within four weeks, but if British communications are to be believed, he is not going to do so.

Three To One

Because according to British figures, the Royal air force is knocking down German planes three to one.

If the battle continues at this ratio, the net result will be equality, while Hitler's aim was to sacrifice one for one and thus in the end exterminate the R. A. F., leaving his own Luftwaffe greatly depleted but still master of the air over England.

Were the German communications entirely authentic and the current battle to persist at its present intensity, he would be able to contemplate launching an invasion within a fortnight. But personal visits to R. A. F. stations and coastal points convinces us that the German announcements largely conform to the propaganda principles of the Nazi chiefs and that the Luftwaffe is not going to be able to wipe out the R. A. F.

It is difficult to judge the authenticity of figures on both sides, which often are diametrically contradictory, but the announced propaganda policy of the Reich, plus eyewitness experience of individual air battles, is sufficient to lead to the conclusion that the British communications are worth considerably more credence than those of the Germans.

Claims Vary
According to the British, they have lost during the past seven days until this morning 54 planes against 169 Germans, while since the beginning of the war they have lost around 700 against the German's 3,000.

The Germans declare that their score is just about the reverse of the British figures.

Today's observed results do not encourage belief that the Germans are going soon to be able to attain sufficient superiority in the air to launch vast landing parties from troop-carrying airplanes, gliders and parachutes.

Professional neutral observers take the present German air operations as tentative pushes to find the enemy's weak points and discover enemy strength, much like the initial phases of the battle of France.

Not when the Germans use 500 airplanes against Britain's ports and convoys but when they try launching 5,000 planes against her interior airports and industrial centers will it be proper to say that the battle of Britain has actually begun.

So far the question is whether the present operations represent the preface to invasion or a gradually increasing effort to impose a blockade by sinking shipping and destroying ports.

Rumanian And Bulgarian Tension Somewhat Revived

(International News Service)

BUDAPEST, Aug. 14.—Tension between Rumania and Bulgaria was revived Tuesday with revelation that the Bulgarian government has rejected a Rumanian proposal for settlement of Bulgarian territorial claims.

After a series of talks with the Rumanian envoy, Bulgarian Premier Ivan Popoff rejected an offer of 5,000 square miles of territory in South Dobruja. Instead the Bulgarian government stood pat on its claims for the entire South Dobruja region.

Rumanian and Hungarian delegations are expected to meet this week to begin negotiations regarding Hungary's demands for Transylvania.

Mine Disaster Inquest Opens

(International News Service)

PORTAGE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Sensational evidence to the effect that 93 men were working in an area where only 70 men were allowed to work under state mining laws was offered Tuesday as a coroner's inquest into the deaths of 53 men in the Sonman mine disaster got underway here.

Leslie Steele, a mine foreman, and Victor Duras, mine superintendent, both admitted that 23 more men were in the blast area than are permitted by law.

Both admitted that although the law permits but 70 men to work in one specified area, there were 93 miners in the section of the mine where the blast suddenly let loose on the morning of July 15.

Both men also admitted that William Flier, mine inspector for district No. 10, had recommended the ventilation in the north dip of the stricken mine be reversed and that this work had not been completed at the time of the explosion.

Steele expressed the opinion that the explosion was caused by a fall of rock in room 28, which liberated gas in entry 17. Duras expressed no opinion as to the probable cause of the blast.

U. S. To Close All Legations In Conquered Nations

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The state department decided Tuesday that it had no choice other than to meet Soviet Russia's demand that it close up all its legations in the recently conquered Baltic states.

Thus the window-shade of secrecy—so far as official American information is concerned—will be pulled down during the "Sovietization" of the three once prosperous little countries along the Baltic shore.

Moscow demanded yesterday that the American legations be closed in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. Officials were very doubtful that the United States even would be allowed to maintain consulates in these countries, as they have been able to do in the states conquered by Germany, except Poland.

Max May Be Sent Against Champ Louis

Postponement Of Conn-Pastor Bout May Result In Max's Recall

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—A Joe Louis-Max Baer world heavyweight championship fight in the fall seemed assured today as a result of postponement of last night's engagement between Billy Conn and Bob Pastor. While postponing nothing more articulate than a clanking of his store teeth in the Castanet-like rhythm peculiar to him, Promoter Mike Jacobs was in the mood to reconsider giving Baer the return crack at Louis which he was promised for dispatching with Tony Galento in their recent genteel riot in Jersey.

Up to now Jacobs has hollered stickup in the general direction of Baer because of the latter's demands for a sizeable price for the Louis encounter, and there has been some quibbling, too, over whether the bout would draw any money.

But now there doesn't seem to be much choice in the matter if Jacobs is to promote a final fall show for Louis, who has defended his title three times this year and would like to go to bat once more.

With the Conn-Pastor bout put off until September 5, when it will be held in Madison Square Garden instead of the Polo grounds, there would be scarcely enough time left for the winner to meet Louis in an outdoor spectacle. Cold weather will be setting in along about October. So the winner could be held over until next year, and in the meantime the steamup could be started for a Baer-Louis belting bee.

May Side-Track Conn
Another speculative version of the postponement was that the Pastor-Conn show would be called off entirely and Conn would be sent out against Louis in September.

In any case, Jacobs is confronted by the not too vexing problem of trying to get an opponent for Louis while at the same time satisfying Conn and Pastor. Baer as an opponent for Louis might be built up into a good card as a result of his out-gaming and out-punching the garrulous Galento and despite Baer's poor showings against Louis in their previous meeting, which Louis won by a knockout. No one would give Baer the remotest chance of winning and most observers would flatly pick him to quit sooner or later, but he can hit and that would be something to dwell upon.

It would be extremely difficult to build Conn into a logical heavyweight contender, despite his fine record as a light heavyweight, over which division he lords it as champion. Even a win over Pastor would not have added a great deal to his prestige insofar as his chances with Louis might be concerned, but it would have helped some.

Just throwing Conn in with Louis could turn out to be anything but a heavy-weight spectacle.

One way and another, that Baer may be back again, whether he likes it or not.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

The Fritz Zivic-Sammy Angott fight at Forbes Field August 26 may draw the largest crowd ever to attend a non-title bout in Pittsburgh. The largest gate ever drawn for such an attraction so far is an approximate $34,000 for the John Henry Lewis-Al Gainer fight in 1936. Lewis then was the light heavyweight champion and Gainer just a fair contender. With Angott, now the NBA lightweight champion and he and Zivic both currently "hot," the coming show should pass the $34,000 mark set by Gainer and Lewis, according to Pittsburgh reports.

Shipment of large bass was received here and recently the bass were placed in the Slippery Rock Creek. Wall-eyes are also to be sent here and will be placed in the Neshannock Creek. When George Silman, president of the Lawrence County Sportsmen's Association was queried as to when fish would be placed in Cascade Park lake, a body of water, owned by the citizens he expressed doubt that such stocking would occur because of the lack of food for fish. The lake was drained not long ago. There is scarcely any vegetation there, it was pointed out.

The Delarado vs. Provident fight which Delarado won with a kayo in the second chapter was one of the most satisfying fight fans here have witnessed in some time. Few missed Babe Adams who failed to appear and fight Shelton Bell. One of the difficulties with the promotion of amateur fights is the lack of control of the amateurs. They will promise by all that is level to fight and then fail to show up. Of course, not all of them are of the disappearing species. More than 700 fans attended the Jefferson A. C. fights in The Arena.

The Lawrence County Baseball League race is due to end today; that is, if the schedule on our desk is correct. Three games are scheduled. It is likely there may be some postponed games. The race is between the New Castle Hot Tots and Ellwood City with Ellwood City in the lead. These teams will clash at Ellwood City at 5:30 p. m. today and a hot game is in prospect. Bessemer, first half victors, will play the Medusa at Wampum and Wampum White Sox will take on Brent at Brent. As soon as the second half card is completed Bessemer will play the second half winner for the championship.

Damp weather and the likelihood of the gate receipts being low were the influences which caused Mike Jacobs to shunt the Conn-Pastor fight from last night to September 5. Reports from New York say Manager Johnny Ray may attempt to swing the bout to Pittsburgh in late September.

Carl Kauffmann, three-time winner of the national public links title, posted a three under par 69 to win medalist honors in the 18-hole qualifying round of the South Park championship at Pittsburgh. In the North Park competition Andy Swedko, also a former national munny titleholder, won top spot with a par-equalling 72.

The Mike Ruffa vs Johnny Marcellino show, docketed for Pittsburgh tonight, has been postponed because of illness to one of the principals. Senesishal won yesterday's feature at six and a half furlongs at Cumberland. The favorite, Double Back, was noosed out.

Florimel, the favorite, lost to Bill Gallon in the $4,000 Tomkins Memorial stake for 2-year-old trotters at Goshen yesterday. Another favorite to go down was Pioneer Hanover in the second division of the Trotting club stake, Miss Princess Laurel winning after the favorite had won the first heat.

Skeet Shoot At Fair Grounds

Another skeet shoot will be held at the New Castle fair grounds to night at 6 o'clock. It was announced by George Silman, president of the Lawrence County Sportsmen's association, who is sponsoring the shoot. The public is invited to attend the shoot without charge other than for shells in case they wish to take part in the shoot.

NOT OUR JIMMY FOXX, IS IT?

Yes, it is, despite the catching paraphernalia. Foxx, the regular Red Sox first baseman, donned the mask for the first time in two years during the Cleveland series. Jimmy, you know, once was a catcher. The move was to insert as much punch into the Sox lineup as possible. Lou Finney, outfielder, went to first and his place in the field was taken by Don DiMaggio.

Touring the circuits:—Until a few days ago, no golfer had ever fired an eagle on the No. 1 hole at Castle Hills. Johnny Johnson, the former New Castle High class expert, shattered the mark while divotting with Guy Lackey, Bill Long and C. Ed Smith, Jr. If someone posted the mark before last Saturday, let him step forward.

Dan McNally, who junked the padded mitts and a football uniform in favor of the pulpit, visited this corner yesterday. The nationally known evangelist, who is preaching nightly at the Calvary Gospel Tabernacle, Vogan avenue, for two weeks, presented his slant on the current heavyweight situation during a general sports chatter.

The 42-year-old clergyman picks Conn to dethrone Louis, provided Billy added 15 more pounds to his frame. "Conn is much too smart for Louis; much too fast and too hard to hit. Louis doesn't seem to be able to hit a moving target," McNally pointed out. Incidentally, McNally picked Conn over Pastor.

The visitors listed Jack Dempsey one of his best friends, as the greatest fighter of all time. "Had Dempsey fought Louis, if both were in their prime, Jack would have won handsily. Jack hit harder, was smarter."

Wage-Hour Law
Legality Raised

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—For the first time since the act was passed in 1938, the question of constitutionality of the wage-hour law was carried to the supreme court Tuesday.

The question was raised in its broadest aspect by the Opp Cotton Mills, Inc., of Opp, Ala., which appealed for a review of a circuit court decision upholding the wage-hour division's attempt to enforce a 32½-cent an hour wage scale in cotton mills in the deep south.

Attaches of the division said the wages of 300,000 workers might be affected by the court's decision in the matter.

Quieter Today

Leaders Move Irregularly

Higher At Start Of Market Today, Steels Somewhat Firmer

By LESLIE GOULD (International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The stock market quieted down today after the break of 1 to 6 points yesterday.

Leaders moved irregularly higher at the start, but the more failed to attract new buying and prices settled back into a mixed and colorless price range later in the forenoon.

Steels, which were among the chief selling targets yesterday, displayed a firm tone throughout the forenoon. However, Bethlehem's top gain of just under a point and U. S. Steel's advance of almost as much were halved by the end of the first hour.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube gave up a half-point gain.

General Motors, ex-dividend $1, and Chrysler each were behind plus signs for a time but slipped back for minor losses late in the forenoon.

Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse Electric and International Paper preferred, all heavy losers yesterday, rebounded a point or more at their highs.

Union Pacific and Owens-Illinois Glass were outstanding weak spots, each dropping 3 points. Most copper and chemicals also were slightly lower. Rails, aviation and utilities generally displayed a steady undertone.

They're Putting Oomph Into Enlistment Ads

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. — The army added sex appeal to service lures today as one of the greatest military recruiting campaigns of American history hit its stride.

The lovely figure of a golden-haired "Miss America" was placed beside the stern and compelling "Uncle Sam" painted by James Montgomery Flagg for World War recruiting, to form the main enlistment drive poster for 1940.

"I Want You"

With one arm draped across the shoulders of "uncle," the young lady beckons galli for American youth to join the army and defend the nation. Above, is the familiar caption of the original Uncle Sam poster, "I Want You."

Miss Marilyn Meske of Marion, O., who won the title of "Miss America," in the annual Atlantic City beauty contests in both 1938 and 1939, is the comely lass in the picture.

Shortly, hundreds of thousands of billboards will be adorned with the big poster; millions of automobile windshield stickers bearing both the original Flagg poster and a new one, painted by Maj. Thomas D. Woodburn, will go out through the nation to call youth to the colors.

In short, plans and preparations were completed today for a streamlined, modernized drive calculated to bring upwards of 50,000 new recruits to the army in as short a time as possible.

Get Small Towns

This time, the drive won't centralize in the big cities. The genius of modern invention has made it possible for the recruiting force to reach the highways and byways districts from coast to coast. And the recruiting high command isn't passing up a single bet.

This drive will shortly see smartly equipped truck and trailer combinations rolling through the farm country. Inside will be all the attractive paraphernalia of the city recruiting office — posters, natty looking military uniforms, trim young men part and parcel of the service and showing they like the life.

Initial deliveries have already been made on an order of 27 of these truck-trailer recruiting stations. Two of them are already on their way, respectively, to the San Francisco and New York fairs, where they will go on exhibition before taking to the road.

When the county fairs start opening all over the country, most of them will find the motored recruiting stations on hand for the big days; the farmers flocking to the fairs from miles around will all get a bird's eye view of army life, watching the daily routine of the five-men crews that will travel for the army with the recruiting units.

Commerce Chamber Asks Tax Delay

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. — Warning that "defense can not be financed on a day-to-day basis," and that "sweeping economic readjustments" will be necessitated by defense spending, the United States Chamber of Commerce Tuesday asked congress to postpone enactment of an excess profits tax.

The request was made before a joint session of the house ways and means and a senate finance committee by Ellsworth C. Alvord, chairman of the chamber's finance committee.

"An excess profits tax devised hastily, or designed primarily to produce revenue, will have the most unfortunate repercussions—financial, economic, social and political," Alvord declared. "Private enterprise not employed in national defense will be irreparably damaged. National defense itself may be jeopardized."

Asks Conscription Boards Be Veterans

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 14.—Placing World War veterans on conscription boards to be set up under the proposed Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill was urged Tuesday by Leo Moerschbacher, commander of the Pennsylvania Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In telegrams addressed to the authors of the draft bill and to U. S. Senators Joseph P. Guffey and James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, Moerschbacher advocated that the majority of proposed board members be overseas war veterans.

The telegrams read: "In view of the reproachable partiality shown during 1917-18 in exempting certain young men because of social status, financial or political influence, the department of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars, respectfully urges you, in considering the composition of the proposed conscription boards, to give unusually serious consideration to our suggestion that the majority of board members be composed of overseas war veterans to prevent the recurrence of scandals caused by partiality and favoritism in selections for national defense service."

"All eligible men should be compelled to serve regardless of social, economic or political status and all exemptions should and must be bona fide."
